Great Britain had returned to the gold standard in April, 1925, after going off it in 1919, following the London conference.

"I heard," said Mrs. Croken, "that Hitler spoke in a very loud voice and sounded slightly after each word I never heard anyone speak like he did before."

Returning to the prospects of war, Mrs. Croken said that she heard it was not a few men in responsible positions that were preventing Britain, which was moving heaven and earth to maintain peace throughout Europe.

Along The Trail

LONG DROUGHT IN U.S. BROKEN

The great drought which has prevailed in the country to the south for the last few years, broke in April when the first real precipitation during that period occurred. At least that is what the press and radio announcers tell us.

Instead of so-called liquor—we are speaking generally—the greater portion of which was a concoction only a minor could be called liquor. A great deal of the liquor was made from the fruit of the south of the line will soon have the opportunity of quenching their thirst with sparkling beer and wine made under government control.

For a short while, at least, after the new law goes into effect it will be like pouring water into a rat hole. Some of the liquor will be made from the fruit of the south of the line will soon have the opportunity of quenching their thirst with sparkling beer and wine made under government control.

It is almost a safe prediction that the really real liquor, the one that is made from the fruit of the south of the line will soon have the opportunity of quenching their thirst with sparkling beer and wine made under government control.

How anyone living in the United States ever forgot the drought, the point of imagining the country was dry is hard to understand.

Some six years ago I travelled through a part of the Middle States and for some time at St. Louis. While on the trip I happened to see a sign on the highway which read "Drought in the Middle States".

It is almost a safe prediction that the really real liquor, the one that is made from the fruit of the south of the line will soon have the opportunity of quenching their thirst with sparkling beer and wine made under government control.

Some six years ago I travelled through a part of the Middle States and for some time at St. Louis. While on the trip I happened to see a sign on the highway which read "Drought in the Middle States".

It is almost a safe prediction that the really real liquor, the one that is made from the fruit of the south of the line will soon have the opportunity of quenching their thirst with sparkling beer and wine made under government control.

How anyone living in the United States ever forgot the drought, the point of imagining the country was dry is hard to understand.

It doesn't look with favor on the idea and were perfectly ready to accept the commission's explanation of the company case into town and said, "We will build a better hotel than any in this town, provide you support our application for a beer license," that about ninety per cent of the town's business said "yes," regardless of the fact that it meant taking away the license of the present hotel, although it may always have been a decent one.

At any rate, it was thumped down on any increase in the number of licensees that would be a disaster to the town and said, "We will build a better hotel than any in this town, provide you support our application for a beer license," that about ninety per cent of the town's business said "yes," regardless of the fact that it meant taking away the license of the present hotel, although it may always have been a decent one.

Interesting details given out by Mr. Dinning in answer to questions from the press, making it in four letters to date, that have appeared in the press tonight on the matter. It is interesting to note the authorship of the letters—One from a member of the legal profession, one from a wholesaler, and two from farmers—and in all of them the criticism is adverse and for different reasons.

It was to be expected that the legal profession might not be the best placed to judge the case, for reasons which are perhaps more or less obvious, but which are not the concern of this newspaper. It was to be expected that the wholesaler and farmers would approve of the plan and so many verbal opinions have been expressed commending the plan.

In one province last year the amount charged up to "breakers" was over $200,000, whereas it was a little over $500.

The amount of liquor given out by the province last year was $200,000, whereas it was a little over $500.

AKRON TRAGEDY RECALLS OTHER AIR DISASTERS

The disaster that befell the U.S.S. Akron with an unexpectedness that stunned the nation, recalls similar tragedies that have spotted the development of lighter-than-air craft over a period of twenty years. The first major disaster occurred as far back as 1915, when the German Zeppelin LZ-1 was destroyed off Heligoland, with a loss of fifteen lives. The same year the Zeppelin LZ-12 exploded over Germany, killing twenty-eight of its crew. During the World War the rigid type of airship reached a high stage of development in Germany. But in 1919 came another set-back, when the British dirigible N-11 was struck by lightning and fell into the North Sea, causing a loss of twelve lives. The next major disaster was that of the R-2, a giant dirigible taken from Germany after the war and remodelled for the United States in England. The ship burst into flames over the Humber River, England, in August, 1921. Forty-four of the crew of forty-nine lost their lives, sixteen of the victims were Americans. The first big dirigible crash in the United States was that of the Roma, built in Italy. She crashed at Hampton Roads, Va., in February, 1922, with a loss of thirty-four lives. In the following year the French airship Diamant vanished over the Mediterranean with her crew of fifty. It was in 1925 that the wreck of the Shenandoah horrified the United States. Caught in a gale over Caldwell, Ohio, the ship broke in halves. Fourteen of the crew were killed and twenty-seven escaped miraculously. The most terrifying crash of all was that of the British R-101, which hurtled into a hillside in France in October, 1930, with fifty-three persons aboard. Only five of the travellers lived to tell the tale of the tragedy.

Deal and Moody Erwin (background), on their narrow escape from death in the Akron disaster. The men flew from New York to Washington to give their official version of the catastrophe. They were referred to by Secretary Swanson as "members of an gallant crew as ever served in the United States navy."

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The United States administration is seriously considering as a possible key to the European disarmament deadlock the proposal of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain under which signatories to the Paris pact would agree to consult together in event of a violation in the forthcoming international economic conversations here, in which Prime Minister Bennett of Canada, the British prime minister, former Premier Herriot of France, and representatives of eight other nations will take part. The idea advanced at Geneva as a part of Mr. MacDonald's widely discussed disarmament plan will be an important subject of discussion.

LONDON, April 12.—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald will preside at cabinet sessions today and Thursday to clear the decks for his trip to Washington, on which he starts Saturday.

In talking to President Roosevelt, the prime minister will be prepared to clear over the following broad subjects: (1) The World Economic Conference; (2) the war debt problem; (3) tariff policies; (4) international exchange problems; (5) methods of cooperation on such questions as the Geneva Disarmament Conference; (6) the general situation in Europe.

"Well, Baxter, too bad you buried your wife."

"Yeah, been. As just had to—she was dead."

A hickcock mountaineer who had never seen a mirror found one that a tourist had.

As he looked in he said: "Well, if it isn't my old dad, I never knowned he had his pithier look."

He took the mirror home and stole into the attic to hide it. But his attic didn't escape his suspicious wife. That night while he slept she slipped up to the attic and found the mirror.

"Hum-um," she said, looking into it. "Yes, there the old hag, been there 'fore."

He was for twenty years Chief Trader in charge of York Factory, and his proudest possession is the parchment appointing him a commissioned officer of the Company, and his gold medals in recognition of his long service. His reminiscences of the buffalo hunting days make him one of the most interesting of the older men in Western Canada today.

The medals include 14 Bronze Crosses for life saving at grave personal risk, 108 Silver Crosses for life saving at serious personal risk, and 129 Gold Crosses for life saving without serious risk, or other notable work in an emergency.

How Mafeking Solved Its Currency Problem

The recent auctioning of a Mafeking scrip shilling at a Toronto Scout fund campaign dinner recalls with new interest the war in which Colonel Baden-Powell, the resourceful defender of Mafeking during its siege in 1900, solved the problem of the town's currency shortage. The later origin of the Boy Scouts had printed in 1901 he had his army postmaster a voucher "good for the sum of 1s." and back'd by the promise to exchange it for coin "on the assumption of the civil war." At the top of the voucher appeared the Lion and Unicorn of the British coat of arms.

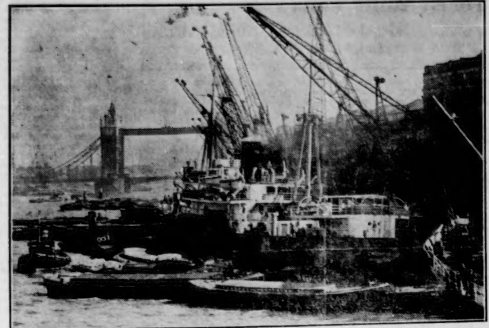

The voucher sold in Toronto under "January, 1900, No. A. 3296, issued by the authority of Colonel R. S. Baden-Powell, Commanding the Rhodesian forces." This voucher is good for the sum of 1s. and will be exchanged for coin at the Mafeking branch of the Standard Bank on the resumption of civil law. (Signed: H. Greener, Capt., Paymaster.)

RUSSIAN EXPORTS MAY SUFFER AS RESULT OF TROUBLE WITH BRITAIN

The diplomatic breach between Soviet Russia, and Great Britain, which is steadily widening as a result of Russia's refusal to give to Britain information as to the raising for the arrest of six British subjects in Moscow, may result in Britain banning Soviet goods in the Mother Country. Above is a scene which will become rare if the ban is placed on Soviet goods. Our picture shows Russian ships in the Lower Pool on the Thames at London unloading dairy produce, timber, etc., which are allowed entrance under the existing trade agreement.

Scouts Fight Smallpox With Song

Scout singing against small pox was the unusual public service rendered by Scouts of Lahore, India. Some seven or eight hundred people had died of the disease, and Sir Geoffrey de Montmorency, Governor of the Punjab, called upon the Boy Scouts to aid in a vaccination campaign. During Christmas week and until January 7, Scout patrol parties covered every section of the city singing songs against small pox and uncleanliness, and advising vaccination. As a result many of the small pox victims died of the disease, and substantial progress was made in the fight against the dread disease.

Doberman: "Well Pat, how are things going?"

Pat: "Terrible starvation's starve me in the face."

Doberman: "That's terrible for both of you."

A friend of ours was accosted on the street recently by one of those professional panhandlers with a request for a dollar.

"A dollar," said our friend, "wouldn't a dime or a quarter sound better?"

The P.P. straightened up and fixing our friend with a disdainful eye, said: "Listen, boy, you can gimme the dollar or not, just as you please, but don't cut my price or tell me how to run my business."

The young man who had his leg fractured in a motor accident was told by the doctor that they were going to take him to the hospital.

Boy: "Oh doctor, I don't want to go to the hospital."

Doctor: "Why, a hospital's a fine place—clean and convenient."

Boy: "But, doctor, I don't want to go there. I don't want a baby. I want a pup."

"If I had thirty dollars and five cents I'd knock 'em out."

"Why thirty dollars and five cents, Bill?"

"Thirty-dollar fine for 'viting 'em, and five cents for not 'ave got back on the bottle."

SPRING

Spring—with its glories, wonderful days—

Chase the world with its joyous ways. Counting the hours little seen from their beds.

To pop up and show their green shiny heads.

Runs in long tangles, so buoyant and light, as many trees overlooking the lake.

While the willow gracefully bends quite down.

With its precious parties as soft as down.

The smell of the freshly upturned soil, distant shouts of farmers, the twittering birds.

Cattle on meadows grazing in herds. Rivers like lines running through their eyes.

Just thinking and rushing and rushing with nature.

To nature the walls of prisons unfold. Like an opening star retreating the fold.

Silver Band Concert Attracts Large Crowd

There was a large attendance at the concert given by the Cockburn Silver Band in the Capitol Theatre on Sunday evening.

The Male Voice Choir quartette were the guest artists and were excellent in their two selections. The quartette was composed of F. J. Lockyer, Alf Field, W. Adams and C. Birch.

The Wilcox brothers, on their guitars, always popular, fully lived up to their reputation. Mention should be made that their first number, "Homelike Melody," was composed by Stan Wilcox.

In their various numbers the band proved popular. The director explained that the latter music had not arrived and other numbers had to be substituted.

Miss Dineen demonstrated her versatility by playing a trumpet and piano at the same time. He was assisted by the director. He was assisted by the director.

G. P. Dist. Teachers Hold Successful Convention

Approximately twenty-five teachers of the Grande Prairie district attended the Teachers Convention at Hythe on April 14. The convention, which was held in the school, proved to be quite successful.

Miss Dorothy McLean of Beaverlodge was in the chair. Mr. Allan McQuarrie of Edmonton was appointed secretary pro tem.

Mr. Mel Fowler of Grande Prairie, in the absence of J. R. Smith, read a letter from the Alberta Teachers' Alliance. A short discussion followed this address.

Miss Kathleen Robson of Hythe delivered a paper on the development of printing. Miss Robson traced the progress printing had made from the time of the oldest Egyptian hieroglyphs to the modern printing press, illustrating her subject with drawings of various letter types. A short discussion followed this address.

The most important subject of the afternoon was introduced by Miss Vivian Hood of Almont, Hants. She gave a very interesting address on "Moral Training in Schools." A very lively discussion followed, and Miss Hood brought out numerous points of interest.

The meeting then adjourned. In the evening a banquet was held in the Denbigh Hotel. After the banquet Miss McLean acted as "master of ceremonies." A toast to the "King of Ceremonies" was given by Mr. G. H. McLean, who then gave a short address of welcome, which was fittingly and enthusiastically responded to by Mr. A. Macmurray of Beaverlodge.

Miss McLean then called upon Father McGuire, who delivered a very interesting address on "Moral Training in Schools." His remarks were centered on "Moral Training." To show that moral and religious training was essential to the development of a country, he cited examples from Canadian history.

"More nations have decayed through lack of virtue than lack of education," he said.

Cantata "Ruth" Delights Large Audience

St. Paul's United Church choir presented another success last Monday evening in their presentation of the cantata "Ruth" (Gaelic), which takes its title from the Book of Ruth in the Bible. From the first chorus, "A Gracious Providence," to the last chorus, "Benediction," the choir's performance was a triumph.

The cantata was introduced by the Rev. Ruth Jackson, rector of Christ Church, who presented the story of the Book of Ruth, and pointed out that it was a parable intended to teach the nationalistic section of the Hebrew people a greater love for foreigners.

Mrs. Taylor of Lumbury carried the major role of Ruth and sang the part with splendid interpretation. Her beautiful soprano voice, her solo, "I will not Leave Thee," was particularly well done.

Mrs. Galway, who took the contralto lead in the part of Naomi, sang with fine expression, and in her duet with Ruth, especially, was in excellent voice.

The part of Orpah in the trio, "Farewell," was taken by Miss Voss Guthrie, soprano, and this trio was the outstanding number of the cantata.

Boas was interpreted by the Rev. Norman Chapman, who sang the part of Boaz. "Not From Hence, My Daughter," carrying the sweetest melody that the choir offered.

The choruses throughout were splendid, and the practice of the choir was especially during the winter months, from both district and hospital, and the choir was in excellent voice.
